VOL. VIII, No. 267. THE PAPER THAT PRINTS THE NEWS SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 14, 1917 THE PAPER THAT EVERYBODY READS TWO CENTS

Court Of Appeals Holds Mrs. Burns Owner Of Stocks

Appeal Court In Construction Of Charles F. Gosser Will Holds That Mrs. Fanny N. Burns, of Cleveland, Was Given Shares In Question—Case Will Probably Not Be Reviewed By Supreme Court.

"Finding for Fannie N. Burns that she is the owner of the stock in dispute in this action. Decree in her favor according to the opinion filed in this case."

This is the decision of Judge L. K. Powell, of Mt. Gilead, O., concerned in by Judges L. B. Housick and R. S. Shields, all of the court of appeals, reversing the decision of Judge James Glenn, who on March 12 had held that Mrs. Fanny N. Burns, of Cleveland, the ownership of 502 shares in the Pope-Gosser pottery but that the shares belonged to relatives of the late Charles F. Gosser.

A letter accompanying the opinion states that motions for a new trial will be overruled but exceptions are allowed. Because it is the custom of the supreme court to review only such cases as are of "general interest" it is far more.

JACK AT PLAY.

That the thoughts of Uncle Sam's "Jack Tars" are not always centered on fighting is evidenced by the photographs which were made aboard an American superdreadnought during "play hour." In that interval, Jack forgets all about his profession and passes the time at some pastime or recreation which the limited space of his sea home permits.

W. VA. MAN IS CRUSHED UNDER TRAIN'S WHEELS

Trainmen on a west bound freight found the dead body of John J. McKinney, aged 23, of Well-burn, W. Va., along the railroad tracks about one and one-half miles east of West Lafayette Friday morning at 1:30 o'clock. The back of the head was crushed and the right shoulder broken. How McKinney met his death is unknown. The body was taken to the N. J. Richard morgue at West Lafayette and prepared for burial. The body was identified by a registration card and letter addressed to his mother, Mrs. Anna McKinney at Well-burn.

Relatives of the dead man were notified Friday morning. Arrangements are made to send the body to Rochester, Pa., for burial today. A brother is located in that city.

Jupe Pluvius Is In League With Kaiser

Complaints about the weather are heard on all sides from the farmers who say the excessive amount of rain fall of the last few days is proving disastrous to the grain crops.

So damp is the ground, it is impossible to work the corn, and by the time the ground is dry enough, the farmers fear it will be entirely too high. They are finding difficulty in putting up hay, as there is not sufficient sunshine to dry it.

The wheat crop is nearly ready for the harvest. Continued rain will probably cause considerable damage.

All townships are expected to report today to C. H. Maagruder, treasurer of the War Fund Committee.

Newcomerstown Stores Entered

NEWCOMERSTOWN, JULY 13.—Bloodhounds brot here from Byresville to track burglars who last night entered and robbed three grocery stores, were unable to follow trails because of the heavy rain.

At the George Kohler grocery the burglars scored $1 in pennies. The D. C. Mahon grocery was next entered. It is situated in the heart of the village and near the Kohler store. Less than $1 was secured in small change from the cash register.

The biggest haul was made at the grocery on the eastern part of the village and owned by Samuel Lewis. Here $15 was taken from the register. Entrance to all three stores was secured by breaking windows.

Gaining momentum as it moved westward, the great Russian drive along the Dniester in Galicia continues successfully. The head is progressing over a front of fifty miles, from Halicz to the foot hills of the Carpathians. The Russians are advancing all along the line.

Northwest of Halicz on Thursday the Russians struck along the Dniester adding important points to their territory there. On both ends of the line the Russian troops have been successful.

Ball and counterballing has been played by the British and Germans on the front in France. The British have been more successful than the Germans in the latter operations.

Finland Makes Declaration Of Independance

Diet Virtually Establishes Finnish Independence of Russia Thru Bill Denying Russian Suzerainty—Law Was Engineered by Socialists—Press Hints That the Move Will Not Be Tolerated.

PETROGRAD, JULY 13.—The Finnish diet on Thursday passed the second reading of a bill virtually establishing Finnish independence. The introduction of the bill has created a serious crisis here.

An indication of the seriousness of the situation was a late sitting of the Petrograd cabinet and a decision of Premier Lvov to summon back to the capital the ministers who are now with the army. According to the Birzhevka, M. Lvov's Socialistic colleagues declare themselves in principle in sympathy with Finland's move. The premier and other ministers belonging to the cabinet party refuse, however, to allow Finland to determine her relations with Russia, insisting she must wait until the meeting of the constituent assembly.

The governor general is not mentioned in the law and as no functions are left him, he is practically superseded. Telegrams from Helsinki declare that after the promulgation of the law the diet will appoint its own senate.

The grand duchy of Finland forms a square division of the Russian empire and until the last few years preserved its old constitution. Its autonomy has been in a great measure abolished by acts of the Russian government. A governor general represents the Russian government.

The comment of the newspapers in Petrograd is sharp. The Retch declares it is impossible for Russia to tolerate Finland's move. The Birzhevka hints at armed interference, saving Russia is now about to make a last attempt toward a peaceful settlement.

According to the present program, Holmgren with tomorrow put the bill passed Thursday into force "by a formal declaration" meaning without the Russian government.

Von Bethman Hollweg Supported By Austria

WASHINGTON, JULY 13.—Although no definite news has come out of Berlin concerning the reported resignation of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, neutral capitals of Europe profess to have information that such event has transpired.

The Hague claims to be in receipt of dispatches from Berlin that the chancellorship has been offered to Count von Hertling, the Bavarian premier, who refused it on account of advanced age and ill health.

The resignation of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, as well as his cabinet, including Vice-Chancellor Helfferich and Foreign Secretary Zimmermann, are still in the hands of the emperor and therefore not yet effective.

State department advisers make it plain that the participation in the conference of the crown prince is very significant and it is viewed as probable that he has deserted the war party.

Saturday promises to be a vital day in the present session of the reichstag, if the reports from extra-German sources are to be credited. The day's program includes a general debate on the political situation, finance, foreign policy and possible peace. The Liberals, it is understood threaten to introduce a resolution setting forth the peace terms of the entire liberal faction of the empire.

So far, says a dispatch from Berlin, dated Thursday evening, the main committee of the reichstag has refused to grant a war credit of 15,000,000 marks, but in spite of this refusal, it is said the credit will be discussed in the open sitting of the body.

The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger is responsible for a statement that the Austro-Hungarian government is bringing pressure to save the German chancellor. A telegram from Count Czernin to the German crown council states that the continuance in office of Dr. Hollweg is of prime importance and his retirement possibly a fatal mistake.

Company I Makes A Plea For Cots

Show your patriotism by loaning the men of Company I, etc. Sixty cots are needed by the company. You have lent dollars to France, Belgium; furnished various supplies to other quarters; now do your bit. Help the boys by loaning a cot. Officers and privates of Company I feel men could be done to help the Coshocton men make their comfortable quarters during their "two weeks" stay at the fairgrounds. A sanitary cot, or any type of cot will be gladly received by the Company. Assurance is given that the beds will receive the best of care.

Can you afford to slight the men of Company I while you have shown patriotism to every other cause? You subscribed for a Liberty Loan bond, you made a donation to the Red Cross society, well and good. Now do something that will be appreciated by the Coshocton county Sammies.

Call the Tribune or Times-Age if you have a cot you can loan to Company I. A member of the Company will call at your home and get the bed.

WASHINGTON, JULY 14.—Major General Goethals, manager of the shipping board of the national defense council, took full charge of the government ship building program today and announced sweeping changes for the construction of the merchant fleet with which the United States hopes to defeat the German submarine campaign.

How World's Greatest Lottery Is Conducted

Some time next week, perhaps Wednesday it is believed, military authorities at Washington will take charge of the nation's lottery which will decide who shall fight Democracy's battles in the trenches abroad.

As announced by those in charge, the lottery will be conducted as follows: Slips numbered consecutively from one to the highest number of registrations in any district will be placed in gelatine capsules which in turn are placed in a glass globe and shaken. Capsules will then be drawn, probably approximating 200 in number. The number written on the slips within the capsules will indicate the men upon whom the first draft will fall. It is believed that each capsule drawn will call about 5,000 men.

IF YOU ARE CALLED.

Learn your number from the list published here. When the lists of drafted numbers are posted should your number be drawn, you will be notified to and must present yourself for physical examination on a certain day. If physically qualified you have seven days in which to file exemption claims and then an additional 10 days to submit proof in support of the claim.

If physically qualified and you file no exemption claim or if you do not appear for examination your name will be posted as called for military service. On the eighth day after the call copies of all such names will be posted and given to the press for publication.

EXEMPTION GROUNDS.

Principal exemption grounds are that you are a public officer, a minister, a divinity student on May 18, 1917, a subject of Germany, a resident alien who has not taken out first papers, in the mail service, a licensed pilot, a married man with a wife or child dependent, that you have a widowed mother or infirm parents dependent upon you, that you have a motherless child under 16 to support, that you are a brother of an orphan child or children under 16 dependent upon you, and that you are a member of a sect opposed to war.

No claim of discharge on account of the industry in which you are engaged can be decided by a local board. Such claims will be decided by the district boards.

An Explanation

The names of the Coshocton county men who have been listed for draft appear in The Tribune as they were presented for publication by the local draft board. The draft board presented them as they came from the various registrars. In some cases errors in the spelling of names may be noticed, but The Tribune does not correct these errors because of the order of the Judge Advocate General of Ohio which is as follows:

"There will be no correction of name or number, but if there is an error in the spelling of the name or address, or change in the address, that fact should be communicated to the local board at once."

County prosecutor Don C. Porter has requested that should any person discover that anyone of draft age has not registered, that fact should be reported to him at once. Persons communicating names to the prosecutor will not be embarrassed thru divulging of their names.

THE WAR'S LAST STAGE

It must be evident to those who have followed its course with ordinary intelligence, that the great world war is now entering its final stage. And this final stage is not one based on munitions or equipment, nor even financial strength, but on that primeval condition of the cavern where men struggled with bestial ferocity over a bone.

Reduced to its final analysis, it is not the last battle nor yet the last dollar, but as a German leader once said, "the last crust," which is to decide the tremendous conflict. It is probably true that irreconcilable principles divide the warring races, but the decision must ultimately rest with that side which can longest feed its armies and civilian populations.

It is this condition which must make the United States with its vast natural resources and productive power the deciding factor. For forty centuries the race has been slowly struggling to that economic level where hunger and starvation are conditions absolutely under the control of man. So far as production is concerned the race has already reached that happy condition. The means we have evolved or distributing the wealth we produce are far more faulty than our system of production. But three years ago no one could have been made to believe that the human family could ever again as a whole be brought to the verge of starvation.

But it is no exaggeration to say that condition, thru the avarice and greed and stupidity of the so-called governing classes, is now facing all of us in all its horrid ugliness. Every warring government, every neutral power, knows full well that if there is not a careful husbanding of this year's yield of foodstuffs there will be a visitation not only of the evils of malnutrition and under-feeding, but of actual starvation and pestilence in more than one nation of Europe such as the world that forever impossible not more than thirty months ago.

The United States as a neutral and jealous of its trading rights with both belligerents and neutrals, was one of the horns of the economic dilemma. The United States a belligerent herself entirely changes the whole economic aspect of civilization. Today the neutral countries occupy an entirely different role as regards the surplus food supplies of this country. Three months ago the nations of the world all looked alike to Uncle Sam. Today our own people are our chief concern, the Allied Nations are a second and the neutral nations, chief of which are Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Switzerland, are a third.

These five neutral countries have maintained a tremendous commerce with Germany for almost three years simply by acting in the capacity of middlemen between this country and Germany. Today it is proposed to put into the hands of our president the fearful power of doling out to these neutrals, after the needs of this country and its allies are provided for, the slender margin which remains for their consumption.

Government experts say that three requirements shall be laid upon neutrals then the exercise of the unprecedented powers to be administered by President Wilson. The Washington correspondence of an exchange sums up these powers as follows: First, food exports to them shall be limited to amounts absolutely necessary to supplement their home production in sustaining their populations. Second, they shall receive no raw materials in which they have been trading with Germany. And third, they shall purchase their supplies from the Allies, so as to obviate the expense that they must trade with Germany in order to get work, iron and other materials needed in their industries.

In regard to the vital matter of food, President Wilson has stated that the aim is to avert stringency and excessive prices in this country to meet the needs of its allies, and to make equitable division with neutrals in such a way that "our supplies will not become available, either directly or indirectly, to feed the enemy." The application of these principles will rest with the now-expected exports council. Decisions from which will be necessary for the export of any products, used in the production.

There is strong proof of the need for drastic action in the figures of our exports of foodstuffs. In March there was sent out of the country food to the value of $4,000,000. In April the shipments were worth $5,000,000 and in May $14,000,000. In the eleven months ending May 31, 1916, the food exports were valued at $74,000,000; in the eleven months ending May 31 last the figure was $82,000,000.

From 1912 to 1914 the United States supplied 40 per cent of the total wheat exports of the world, while, between August, 1914, and August, 1915, it supplied 75 per cent of the total wheat of the world. In the eleven months ending May 31, 1916, the food exports were valued at $74,000,000; in the eleven months ending May 31 last the figure was $82,000,000.

But still more serious is the shortage of food, already serious and threatening to become so. Of grain alone the Allies were supplied during the last twelve months, and it is possible that the rest of the world will be put upon the diet of American wheat. Under the circumstances, a further control of exports to neutral countries, so far as food is concerned, is an obvious requirement of safety.

Aside from the pressure of the blockade against Germany, the British government is doing its utmost to keep the Allies supplied with food. It is possible that the rest of the world will be put upon the diet of American wheat. Under the circumstances, a further control of exports to neutral countries, so far as food is concerned, is an obvious requirement of safety.

As early as May 4 this design was suggested in a dispatch from Washington. "The war is a matter of the submarine campaign and the necessity of a kind drastic measures to cope with them," it said. "May come the day when the submarine campaign will be the alternative of holding in the war against Germany or going without food imports until the war is ended. This new aspect of the international situation loomed up today as a result of a conference held by Foreign Minister Balfour and others with Secretary Lansing."

There is, naturally, no avowal by the government of a design to coerce the European neutrals into joining, actively or passively, in the war to curb Prussianism. The action taken is amply justified and necessitated upon the mere grounds of expediency and self-preservation.

Yet it is likely to have far-reaching political and military results for it seems impossible that the remaining neutrals will long be able to avoid a decision demanded by the menace of German might on the one side and the control of the necessities of life by the opposing alliance on the other side.

The heads of the Red Cross plan to build an immense hospital in New York for the war cripples. Something like this should have been done long ago for the political lame ducks who surround every year in our great political battles.

The Kaiser, it is said, is greatly alarmed over the prospect of facing a crisis in the reichstag. If he is afraid to face it he might wear a mask or turn his rainy back.

Announcement of that billion-bushel increase in American crops is fine news, if it is fact as well as news and not issued to discourage the Teutonic nations.

"Christ was an anarchist," shouted Emma Goldman. He was somewhat of a precedent breaker, but his neighbors didn't have to live in bomb-proof cellars.

A number of our agricultural recruits who got their first experience in farming in American backyards will do their next digging in the trenches in France.

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS TO FLUSH
THE KIDNEYS IF YOUR BACK HURTS

Advices folks to overcome kidney and bladder trouble while it is only trouble.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority. Because the urine acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; then the twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

FOOD VALUE OF CORN.

A Series of Comparisons That Is a Study in Economy.

I have recently made an exhaustive investigation of the comparative food value of the products of white corn, and the results show these products to be so much more economical than many of the foods commonly used that I believe it would interest your readers to see the comparison.

The food value of one pound of cornmeal, grits or hominy, costing 3 cents, is equal to the food value of any of the following commonly used foods:
1 pound of wheat flour, costing... 6 cents
1 pound of rice, costing... 6 cents
1/2 pounds of cheese, costing... 6 cents
1/2 pounds of round steak, costing... 6 cents
1/2 dozen eggs, costing... 6 cents
1/2 peck of potatoes, costing... 45 cents
6 pints of milk, costing... 50 cents

National prosperity has made us prodigal of our resources and wasteful of our substance, particularly in the matter of food, for which we have been paying more than is commensurate with food values, and I believe it behooves Americans today to consider the real nutritive value of the food which they purchase and to know the merits of white corn products, which I believe to be the cheapest nourishing food which the housewife can buy on the market today.

The south knows and appreciates the value of white corn for table use. Why not the north, east and west?—A. W. Smith in New York Post.

LISPING AND STUTTERING.

Children Should Be Taught How to Use Their Speech Organs.

Lispings may be caused by a lack of practice in the organs of speech. Stutterers are recruited largely from the ranks of the lispers. Children imitate the slovenly and disagreeable language of their elders.

Among the causes of lispings, in addition to the wrong use of speech organs, are abnormal teeth, lips, tongue, jaw or palate. Some cases are apparently due to carelessness or haste in reproducing speech sounds.

Lispings is not to be considered abnormal unless it noticeably persists beyond the age of five or six years. Usually the tendency to slur over words disappears rapidly in the upper grades of school. Fully one-fourth of the children entering school suffer from this speech defect.

Many educators argue that the first months of school should be given over to exercises in oral language intended to form correct habits of speech. They claim that the anxious haste of the primary teacher to teach children to read is unjustified and maintain that if one-half of the time used for phonics drills were devoted to voice cultivation many cases of stuttering would be prevented.—Pittsburgh Press.

An Error Brings
an Error

By MARTLAND MALTBEE

Alan Forbes had been engaged to Jennie Hatch for more than a year, and, since his salary was not sufficient to warrant marriage and his prospects of a raise were poor, the two reluctantly determined to give up each other, calling their engagement off.

Jennie had an aunt, an old woman, who lived alone. She was very poor—at least she was supposed to be—and Jennie devoted a great deal of time to her, the old lady being very feeble. About the time that Alan and Jennie decided there was no hope for them the aunt grew worse and died suddenly. On her deathbed she told Jennie that she would find a creak in the chimney enough money to bury her and what was left over would be hers.

The day after the funeral Alan received a note from Jennie asking him to meet her at the aunt's house. She had a surprise for him. Alan went to the house at the time mentioned and found no one there. On a table was a little pass book showing deposits of some $12,000. The lock bore a number, but not a name.

In turning over the leaves of the book a bit of paper fell out of it. Alan saw the words "Dearest Jennie" written in a man's hand. Yielding to a desire to know who was thus addressing the girl he loved in such endearing terms, he overcame his scruples against reading what had been written. The writer, who signed himself Dick, broke with "Dearest Jennie" on account of a story he had heard reflecting on her good name.

Here was a terrible revelation. Alan, not wishing to see Jennie again until he had made up his mind what action to take with regard to her, went away, leaving the book and the note just as he had found them.

Now, Jennie just before her lover's entrance had gone upstairs and was busying herself putting the house to rights, for it was hers as well as the deposits recorded in the pass book which she had found in the chimney. She had laid the book on the table to show Alan when he came, but a will she had also found she had put in a desk.

When Alan came in Jennie did not hear him, nor was she aware of his going. Noticing that the time she had asked him to come had passed, she concluded to go downstairs and wait for him there. She waited an hour, and, since he had not come, she surmised that he had not received her note. She was greatly disappointed for she had counted on showing him her inheritance.

Since Alan did not put in an appearance, Jennie sent to his home to learn the reason. She was told that he had gone out about the hour she had expected him and had not returned, nor did he return that day or the next or at all.

His disappearance at a time when their marriage was not only possible, but the wherewithal for their future comfort had been provided, was a terrible blow to her. Moreover, it was a mystery. Had Alan been spirited away, or had he been killed? There was no answer.

Jennie concluded to live alone in the house she had inherited. She had faith that some day Alan would come back to her, and she would receive him in the home that had been provided for them. But year after year passed, and he did not come.

One day an old man came to the house and asked for Jane Hatch. Jennie told him that Jane Hatch had been dead several years. He appeared to be very much cast down. Jennie informed him that she was Jane Hatch's niece and had been named for her aunt. At this the man opened his heart to her, telling her that he had been betrothed to her aunt in their youth and had wronged her, having listened to a story to her injury.

Meanwhile Jennie on taking the pass book to the bank had discovered the note that had driven Alan away, though it had not occurred to her that it was the cause of his going. She now professed the note and returned it to the visitor. This led to her telling him the story of her own bereavement. What had not occurred to her occurred to her visitor. He suggested to her that Alan had come into the house while she was upstairs, found the note in the pass book and, supposing that it was for the living instead of the dead Jennie, had taken himself away.

"My mistake," he said, "has endangered the lives of two generations. This paper shall do no more harm." And he threw it into the fire. Then he added: "I have brought this trouble upon you. I will make it my business to find your lover. If he is alive I will return him to you."

The stranger began a systematic course of advertising for Alan Forbes, and at last one of the notices reached Alan's eyes. He communicated with the advertiser, who at once went to seek him.

One morning while Jennie Hatch was attending to her household duties she went from the upper story down to her living room. There stood Alan Forbes. Jennie uttered a cry.

"I have come," said Alan, "to ask your forgiveness for having made what some would call a blunder, but which I now see was a crime. I stand before you as a criminal. I have listened to your explanation."

"It was all a horrid mistake," cried Jennie, staggering toward him. He received her in his arms.

Mrs. A. Z. and Dorothy, of Pine street, are visiting relatives in Ashland.

Mrs. Henry Shepherd, of North High street, is spending a few days with relatives in Cambridge.

William Thompson, of Pittsburg, will come to Coxhockton Monday to visit his sister, Mrs. Ella DeHart, of Main street.

Charles Shultz, of the Adams Express company, will return to this city Sunday after spending a few days in Chicago and other cities in Illinois.

Mrs. Charles McNary, of South Third street, has returned to her home after a visit with relatives in Ashland.

Miss Reva Nelson, of Chestnut street, is visiting friends in Cambridge. Max Slaughter has returned to his home in Newark after a visit at the W. W. Morford home on South Tenth street.

Sparrows Eaten in England. Sparrows are often eaten by English country persons. They are captured easily in the mesh stretched over the ground and baited with grain, or in nets hung at night around their roosting places in ricks, hedges and ivy-clad walls. Also, the ground can be baited and a crowd of feeding sparrows laid low with a gun, using fine shot for the purpose.

Important Discoveries. Chequered metallurgical processes will probably make available as new materials a number of metals now little known. Magnesium, for instance, is likely to become one of the common metals very soon.

Flow Evolved Slowly. The plow evolved slowly from a crude instrument of wood into the steel tool of today. In many parts of the world even today a very primitive form of wooden plow is still in use.

SUNNY TENNESSEE IN VERGE
Greenland River gives no advice. In that he will of Tennessee. He simply tells of Southern bells and how from home. He once did roam. "You and you and me, his heart can't be away from in Sunny Tennessee, because he loves it."

"Is the sun line any brighter
From the years that used to be
Is the moonlight any softer
Down in Sunny Tennessee—
Are the song birds any sweeter
As they warble to their mates?
Are the mountains any higher
Than they are in other states?
For you understand the feeling,
If you've ever had to roam,
The sky is always blue
And the old-time friends seem true,
When a fellow thinks of home."

When the way I take is weary
Then the shadow of the years,
When the day has seen my sorrow
And the dark has known my fears,
Then I turn to you and whisper:
"O, the night has grown so deep—
Where I lost your light was flaring
Only those shadows creep;
Can't you see I'm lonesome for you
Where the way of fate is stark?
Won't you call me home, O Mother,
Call your boy in from the dark?"

Informal Dance Honors Those Who Leave Soon To Serve Their Country

About 150 people paid honor to the young men from Coshocton who will report for military training at Columbus today by attending the informal dance given last evening in Colonial hall. A number of the honored guests are members of the Colonial club, and during the course of the evening Frank Kerchner, president of the club, made a short and impressive farewell speech to those who have enlisted. This was followed by the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the orchestra, and the singing of the hymn by the entire body of dancers.

The music was furnished by the Jackson Jazz orchestra, who donated their services. The use of the hall was donated by the Colonial club, and the red, white, and blue decorations in it were most appropriate. Miss Edythe Labin presided at the punch bowl.

Previous to the dance, there was a party at the home of Misses Bertha and Ann Coulter on South Lawn avenue, honoring Fred Vensil, Joseph Gallimore, Ralph Holmes and Ward and tainment for the guests, and delicious refreshments were served. The guest list follows: Mrs. Hattie Lamm, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Frank Tidball, Mrs. Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duling and son, James, Misses Ella and Lucy McIntyre, Mary Stewart, Dorothy Wells, Andrew Jennings, Helen Ingham, Hazel Andrews, Murilla McIntyre, Perol Craig, Gayle Jennings, Emma Eckert and Mildred Guthrie, Stanley Dawson, Glen Aronhalt, Alfred and Harold Rodgers, David Morrison, Fred Fowler, Benton Jennings and the guest of honor.

O. S. C. Meets.

The O. S. C. club members, of Warsaw, met Friday evening. An appropriate program was given. Refreshments were served to the five members present.

Will Move To Alliance.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shaw expect to move to Alliance next month. Mr. Shaw is employed there now, and will spend Sunday in this city with his wife, who is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dawson, on South Lawn avenue.

Arrives Today.

Miss Rozanne Gilmore, of Dayton, will arrive in this city today to visit Miss Virginia Merrill, of Main street.

Home From Kent.

Misses Gynellie Fisher, Mary Kimberly, Gayle Cox and Bessie Ort, who are attending Kent Norman school, came to Coshocton Friday to remain over the week end at their homes in this city.

WHEN TO DO YOUR CANNING

The Woman's Home Companion for August says:

"The time to do the canning is within twenty-four hours of the time when the fruits and vegetables are picked. The fresher they are when the canning process begins, the surer they will be of keeping, and the better they will taste when opened. Fruit should be picked before it is over ripe, and vegetables while young and tender. Do not wait for the end of the season, but put up the new things as they come along. If you do not know how much better small ones are than large ones, find out this summer. Carrots two or three inches long seem like a different vegetable when compared with coarse, woody, full-grown ones. Can them while they are small.

"A jar or two, put up every day while one is getting dinner, seems to take no extra time. If one hurries a bit, or if one serenely plans to take advantage of the odd minutes, while waiting for something else to cook, these little extras can be done without any trouble, while on the farm canning parties may be planned ahead when it is known that large amounts of produce will be ready to can at a given time."

The True and the False.

The president of a bank, when asked by a young clerk how he could distinguish the counterfeit bills from the good, said: "Get familiar with the good bills, and you will recognize the bad bills at sight." Here is a vast volume of general wisdom summed up in a single sentence.—Christine Herald.

A Question.

Said the near cynic: "Judging from the time some of the young blood of this town arrive home in the morning, 'tis hard to tell whether to call them night owls or larks."

THIS is Thomas A. Edison, who, although seventy years of age, is now working eighteen hours a day for his country without pay or thought of reward. He is setting his fellow Americans a splendid example of patriotism. His work is being done secretly, but it is probably true that the nation is placing more reliance on Mr. Edison than on any other single man except the President.

Mr. Edison is conceded to be the greatest inventor the world has ever known. The New Edison, which the New York Globe calls "The Phonograph with a Soul," is Mr. Edison's favorite invention. It is the achievement in which he takes the greatest pride.

Do you believe that there is any other man in the world, or any group of men, who could invent as good a phonograph as Mr. Edison's new phonograph?

Mr. Edison owns and controls Thomas A. Edison, Inc., which manufactures

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph With a Soul"

This wonderful new instrument is built by expert workmen under the direction of highly paid technical men in accordance with laboratory standards established by Mr. Edison personally. Do you believe that any talking machine factory could make as good a phonograph as Mr. Edison's Laboratories make? If you like music—and who doesn't—you will sooner or later have a sound-reproducing instrument in your home. It is worth something to know which is the best.

WE don't ask you to take our word; we merely ask you to make a test. Come to our store; let us give you the names of the artists whose voices have been Re-Created by the New Edison and who also make talking machine records. Then if you please, go to a talking machine dealer's store and listen to the talking machine records made by these artists. Afterwards return to our store and listen to the New Edison's Re-Creation of the voices of the same artists. If you would like to put the New Edison alongside of a talking machine when this test is made we shall be glad to send the New Edison to your home without any obligation or expense on your part. If you can get the talking machine dealer to do as much, then you can make the comparison at your leisure and convenience in your own home.

- When we reflect upon the white of an egg that has been sitting around in the refrigerator, apparently waiting to be used up in something, almost ever since we can remember, we think that all this talk about the American home-citizens' readiness to exchange is somewhat exaggerated after all.—Columbus (Ohio) State Journal.

A Well Invested Fund
By PAULINE D. EDWARDS

During the war between the states I went south to nurse sick and wounded soldiers. After the surrender I remained for awhile binding up wounds of another kind. I found many southern people in great want. The blockade had deprived them of nearly everything one needs for health and comfort, and as for money, they had only the Confederate currency, worth only the paper on which it was printed.

I was poor enough myself, heaven knows, so far as this world's goods are concerned, and all I could do was to work for these people, to plan for them and encourage them.

One morning a man called on me whose appearance from the first interested me. He wore a threadbare suit of Confederate gray, but beneath his patches was one of those southern gentlemen who retained that courtesy of speech and manner which belong to an earlier period and are now almost universally cast aside.

"Madam," he said, with a deferential bow, "hearing that you are from the north, I come to you to ask, if you would be so kind as to give me a little information concerning New York. I propose to go there to enter into business."

"In what part of New York do you think of locating?"

"I shall go to the city of New York, madam."

"In what business do you propose to engage?"

"An old negro woman belonging to my mother used to make a salve for burns, cuts, bruises and such injuries. It was very effective. I have the recipe. I intend to manufacture the remedy and hope to make a living by selling it."

"Have you capital?"

"I have not. But since the ingredients are cheap, since I propose to do all the work myself, including selling the salve, I fancy I can get on without capital."

Here was a man who had doubtless been a planter, a slave owner and a gentleman reduced to selling a patent medicine in a land with which he was not familiar. My heart beat for him. I gave him a line to a boardman friend in New York who kept boarders and would take him in and be easy with him in his payments till he should get a start. Before he left me I asked him if he had money to make the journey.

He said that he had not, but that during the war he had marched all over the Confederacy, and a tramp from Virginia to New York had no terrors for him. I had just received the quarterly payment of my limited income and, taking out a roll of bills, offered it as a loan. He declined to accept it.

"You will need it as capital if for nothing else," I said. "Take it. You can consider me a partner in your business. There are patent medicine sellers in the north. I was once made enormous fortunes."

"How do they do it?"

"Mostly by advertising."

"He seemed very much interested."

"Suppose, madam, that I use this money you offer me for the purpose of advertising my salve and divide with you the profit arising from such use of it. Would you consent to that?"

I told him that he would need the money to reach the scene of his operations, whereupon he again declined to accept it till I gave him permission to use it in any way he chose and to take me in for a partner. Then with much formality he departed with the funds which I considered a gift and of which I never expected to hear again.

I remained in the south till I had lifted many persons out of the slough of despair, then returned to the north to regroup, for my health was not of the best. Ten years passed. I often thought of persons I had helped, but one whom I had seen but once passed completely out of my mind. He was the man who had taken me into the salve business as his partner.

One morning upon glancing over the personals in a newspaper I was astonished to see one for him, or at least one of my name. It read:

"If Mary Westworth will communicate with Armstrong & Constance, attorneys, No. 123 1/2 street, New York, she will be something to her advantage."

I communicated with the firm at once and waited wonderingly. In a few days I received a call from a young man employed by them, who had brought a carriage to take me to their office. I asked him what it all meant, and he said he only knew that he had been sent to bring me. On reaching my destination I was shown into Mr. Constance's office, who, after keeping me waiting half an hour while he talked law with a client, said to me:

"We have been waiting for months to find you that we may effect the sale of the 'My Old Mammy's' Salve company, in which you are an equal partner."

"You have made a mistake, sir. I am not interested in any patent medicine."

He then began to question me as to my antecedents, recalled the southerner to whom I had made a loan and proved to me that I was half owner in one of the largest patent medicine concerns in the United States. The founder had died, and the business had been sold under terms of the will to certain employees. My signature was needed to complete the sale.

I received a splendid fortune and after that made frequent trips to the south, where I expended my surplus income among those who needed it.

N. M. late last night, left Hermannas, a watering station, during the forenoon today and is strung for a mile or more along the railroad track, walking east in the direction of Columbus, according to reports.

On this information Columbus citizens turned out heavily armed to repel any "invasion."

Two hundred and fifty armed guards who escorted the 1107 members of the Industrial Workers of the World and their sympathizers from Bisbee yesterday, returned to Douglas this morning on the regular westbound passenger train on the El Paso & Southwestern railroad. They reported they had left their charges at Hermannas, after placing a freight car containing food and water on a siding. They said many of the deported men jumped from the slow moving train and escaped in the desert during the night trip. A troop of cavalry is in control at Hermannas.

Striker Kills Posse Member.
The deportation of the men yesterday was not accomplished without bloodshed, Orson P. McRae, a member of the citizens' posse which rounded up the men, having been shot and killed by James Brew, a striker, who fired thru the door of his room when a search of the building was being made. Brew was later killed by McRae's companions.

No other clashes between the posse and I. W. W.'s were reported. The roundup of the men was complete, every one who was known as a sympathizer of the strikers being taken until he gave a satisfactory explanation of his activities.

Germans in Mining Camps.
Ten German subjects, at least two of whom are believed by the authorities to be army officers, have been located at Miami, Ariz., and in nearby mining camps. It became known today.

A Loyalty League, similar to those of Globe and Bisbee, has been formed at Miami and the organizers have expressed their intention of stopping I. W. W. street meetings, even if it becomes necessary to drive agitators out, as was done at Bisbee. Heavy guards of United States soldiers have been placed around the powder magazines owned by mining companies in the Miami district.

The Repairing of Haricot Castle

By ELINOR MARSH

Ned Maloney in conventional evening dress was strolling through the apartments of Mrs. Winterton, who was giving a reception to the noble Earl of Haricot, his lordship having recently come over from England. Ned was making his way toward the hostess, who stood receiving her guests. Lord Haricot standing beside her. Suddenly Ned stopped and stared at the Britisher.

Had Ned a twin brother and was that brother the honored guest of the evening? Perhaps the likeness was heightened by the similarity of dress, for there is no variation in men's evening apparel. Perhaps the fact that neither wore any hair on his face also had some bearing on the resemblance.

Ned retreated a short distance and gave himself up to thought. It was no secret that Lord Haricot had come over in search of a wife who would have the means to build up Haricot castle, which, having been built in the year A. D. 1280, was sadly in need of repairs. Indeed, the object of his lordship's visit to America had been privately given by Mrs. Winterton to a few of the wealthiest girls with a view to facilitating the success of his undertaking, for it was to be understood that any marriage that might take place would be one of convenience.

Ned had seen and admired a certain lady and had worshipped her in secret. What put it into his head to pass himself off as Lord Haricot to this Miss Geraldine Mortimer he could never quite explain. Nevertheless the idea somehow got lodged there and took root. Miss Mortimer was in very moderate circumstances, which did not fill the bill at all. On the other hand, Ned was rich.

Ned refrained from greeting the hostess, as he was bound to do, and left the house, so that the resemblance between himself and the noble lord was not noticed. The next day he called on his friend, Mrs. Amy Lee, and imparted his scheme. Mrs. Lee, who was a natural seeker after interesting situations, finally promised to introduce him to Miss Mortimer as Lord Haricot.

Miss Mortimer had caught a glimpse of his lordship at the opera, and he had met her gaze admiringly. She was therefore not surprised when she was informed that he had asked for an introduction to her. Nevertheless, having heard a report of the object of his visit to America and supposing that she would be expected to repair Haricot castle, which she was unable to do, she hesitated as to granting permission for the introduction. But there is always an expectation with a woman that she may be loved for herself. At any rate, Miss Mortimer finally consented.

During the short period of Ned Maloney's devotion to Geraldine Mortimer, as Lord Haricot, the imposture was constantly on the eve of being discovered. Several times he supposed that it was all up with him. But his good fortune stood by him, and when he was ready to confess the trick he was not even suspected.

Ned made short work of his wooing. Indeed, he dare not make long work of it. One day, being encouraged, he proposed, pretending that he had understood Miss Mortimer to be wealthy, and giving her to understand that his proposal carried with it an agreement on her part not only to settle half a million on her husband, but settle an other half million on the home of his ancestors.

Miss Mortimer had been wondering whether Haricot's attentions came from love or whether he had been misinformed as to her pecuniary status. When her mind was relieved she was greatly disappointed. The trouble was that she had lost her heart to him. Tears stood in her eyes as she confessed that she was without the means to purchase his lordship.

Then Ned, being convinced that she loved him, confessed that he was not a lord at all, that he was an ordinary American citizen, and that if she would accept him with love in a cottage, which was another name for poverty, his proposition held good.

Miss Mortimer must have been very much in love to forgive the deception, especially since Ned had no plausible reason for having made it. But she did forgive him and was very much delighted that after all she need not give up the man she loved because she had not the means to put stone and mortar into an old pile, the glory of which had departed when it was captured by the house of Lancaster during the War of the Roses. Ned pleased her first with his expressions of love, which were sincere, and, second, told her that he could not lavishly wealth upon her, which was untrue.

However, he did try to keep up this deception as to his finances, and one morning drove her to a palatial house in the center of spacious grounds and informed her that it was Haricot castle and needed no repairs, since it was just finished. As to the title, they would be obliged to get on without it.

Miss Mortimer was very happy. As for the real Lord Mortimer, he married the daughter of a multimillionaire. She repaired the family home, but never lived in it. Before the repairs were finished his lordship so disordered himself with a music hall lady that his wife divorced him.

Golfers Will Raise Food Products For Country.

F. U. ADAMS ORIGINATES PLAN

Idea of Well Known Author Has Been Enthusiastically Received—Adopted Motto "We Are Not Too Proud to Hoe"—Expect to Realize Several Million Dollars.

New York.—The golf players of the United States will turn farmers and raise on their links huge crops of potatoes and other food products for the use of the United States and its allies. Such is the movement set on foot by the Dunwoody Country club at a special meeting held in its Yonkers clubhouse. The plan originated with Frederick Upham Adams, author and golfer.

The plan of operation is simple and is declared to be practical. Dunwoody.

FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

in common with all golf courses, has several acres of idle land not used for golfing purposes. The club has set this aside for cultivation. More than a hundred of the members have already volunteered to do the work of cultivation, and it is predicted that this volunteer farming corps will soon number fully 250 golfers who will try to prove themselves as efficient with a hoe as with a niblick. Those volunteers sign the following pledge:

"The Dunwoody Country club has the honor of taking the initiative in a national campaign on the part of golf clubs to aid in winning the war now declared. We propose to set aside for cultivation all of our land not also-ably needed for golf purposes. We propose that our members shall cultivate this land at a fair market value and that members shall do the same, and that the total cash proceeds shall be devoted to the purchase of ambulance trucks and other necessities required in the successful prosecution of war.

"The undersigned members of the Dunwoody Country club now volunteer their services in the Dunwoody volunteer garden corps and pledge themselves to work in these gardens for an average of two hours a week for the twenty weeks which constitute the season. We also agree to pay $1 as initiation fee and further pledge ourselves to obey the rules which will be adopted to govern the execution of this patriotic duty."

Two hours a week for twenty weeks makes forty hours' work for each member, which means that a volunteer corps of 250 members would perform 10,000 hours of farming labor. This now has a market value of not less than $2,000 an hour, an item of $20,000, and the Dunwoody farming experts predict that the muscle of their golfers will create a product which will sell for not less than $1,000, of which the club will be chief patron.

Mr. Adams, President of the Dunwoody Country club and other organizers of this movement point to the fact that there are fully a thousand golf clubs in the United States and predict that several millions of dollars will accrue for war purposes from this campaign.

"The Dunwoody plan" has the hearty support of Howard F. Whitney, secretary of the United States Golf association.

The Dunwoody Country club will at once prepare a pamphlet containing the details of "the Dunwoody plan" and will mail it to all of the golf clubs in the United States.

The motto adopted is "We are not too proud to hoe" and the popular name for the golfers this year will be "Way down yonder in the cornfield."

Children's Bedtime.
Interesting statistics showing the time at which the children of Berberly, Mass., between the ages of eight and twelve, go to bed, disclose that 18 go to bed between five and six o'clock, 5240 between eight and nine; 156 between 11 and 12, and 45 between 12 and 1. It is to be hoped that there are no Beverly children who are not in their nighties, safely tucked up, by one o'clock.—Boston Globe.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

A few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur brings back its vigor, color, gloss and youthfulness. Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray.

Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, tho, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this thru your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
